HERBAL LIFE'S PROBLEMS

1 MARK HUGHES is a master of the art of survival. His Los Angeles-based Herbalife International Inc. is a company that sells weight-loss and nutrition products of dubious value. Bad publicity and government investigations hurt his U.S. business in the late 1980s. However, Hughes continues to enjoy a luxurious lifestyle in a $20 million mansion. He has been sharing his fortune with his third wife, a former beauty queen. He can finance this lavish lifestyle just on his salary and bonus, which last year came to $7.3 million.

2 He survived his troubles in the U.S. by moving overseas, where regulators are less likely to investigate and consumers even more naive, at least initially. Today 77% of Herbalife retail sales come from overseas. Its new markets: Asia and Russia. There's a worm, though, in Hughes' apple. Foreigners aren't stupid. In the end they know that the products are no good. In France, retail sales rose to $97 million by 1993 and then dropped to $12 million last year. In Germany, sales hit $159 million in 1994 and have since plunged to $54 million.

3 There is trouble on the home front, too. On a recent conference call with distributors, Hughes revealed he's divorcing his wife, Suzan, whose smiling and perky image is featured on much of Herbalife's literature.

4 Meanwhile, in a lawsuit that's been quietly moving through Arizona's Superior Court, former Herbalife distributor Daniel Fallow of Sandpoint, Idaho charges that Herbalife doesn't pay its distributors and its products are way overpriced. Fallow also claims Hughes wanted to use the Russian mafia to gain entry to that nation's market.

5 Fallow is no angel, but his lawsuit, which was posted on the Internet, brought out other complaints. Randy Cox says Herbalife "destroyed my business" after he and his wife complained to the company that they were being cheated out of their money by higher-ups in the company.

(Reading adapted from www.bestsamplequestions.com)

2. Hughes' troubles extend beyond business into his personal life as well.

4. Despite troubles in the U.S. market, Mark Hughes continues to have a very expensive lifestyle.

5. Hughes is the owner of a company with a bad reputation and is currently experiencing a lot of problems.

6. The initial legal case has also led to other complaints against the company.

Ainsley Harriott

I've always been an entertainer and played the funny man. I was a part-time comedian, so I learned how to stand in front of audiences. It made me confident. I like being liked and love making everyone smile.

I've always lived in London and have just moved to a larger house with my family. We spend a lot of time just singing and dancing around the house. My working day is divided between television and writing cook books, though TV takes most of my time. I spend three days a week working on my cooking programs. I eat many things at home but I only buy quality food. When I'm cooking, I experiment with ingredients – it's good practice from my TV series.

I'm a football fan and enjoy going to matches, but I'm a home-loving person really. I don't like going to the pub, but we do go out about twice a month. I prefer being at home playing with the children. I rarely go to bed before midnight. Late evening is when thoughts on cooking come to me, so I often write or plan my programs then. When I eventually go to bed, I have no trouble sleeping!
