Storyline

A policeman uncovers a key while working on a murder case. The key can open every door and take him into a motel room, but if you leave something there that doesn’t belong to you, it will be gone as soon as the room "resets"... He discovers that there are special objects hidden in different places. They don’t look special, but they have special powers. When his daughter disappears and he is framed for killing his partner, he must find a way to bring her back from the room, while working with different groups and people searching for the objects. But who can he really trust when everyone goes crazy after touching the objects...
